Read the following passage carefully and answer questions that follow: (Ques. 16-30)

There were other boys in Manjari village but Bisnu was the only one who went to school. His mother would not have fussed if he had stayed at home and worked in the fields. That was what the other boys did; all except lazy Chittru, who preferred fishing in the stream or roaming here and there. However, Bisnu went to school. He went because he wanted to. No one could force him to go and no one could stop him from going. He had set his heart on receiving a good schooling. He wanted to read and write and walked to school everyday.

A colony of langoors lived in the forest. They fed on oak leaves, acorns and other green things and usually remained in the trees, coming down to the ground only to play or sun themselves. They were beautiful, supple-limbed animals, with black faces and silver-grey coats and long, sensitive tails. They leapt from tree to tree with great agility. The young ones wrestled on the grass like boys.

A dignified community, the langoors did not have the cheekiness or dishonest habits of the red monkeys of the plains; they did not approach dogs or humans. They had grown used to Bisnu's comings and goings and did not fear him. Some of the older ones would watch him quietly, a little puzzled. They did not go near the town; because the boys threw stones at them. The forest gave them all the food they required.

Coming from another direction was a second path and at the junction of the two paths, Sarru was waiting for him. Sarru came from a small village about three miles from Bisnu's and closer to the town.

They hailed each other and walked along. They often met at this spot, keeping each other company for the remaining two miles.

“There was a panther in our village last night”, said Sarru.

This information interested but did not excite Bisnu. Panthers were common enough in the hills and did not usually present a problem except during the winter months, when their natural prey was scarce.

“Did you lose any animals?” asked Bisnu.

“No. It tried to get into the cowshed but the dogs set up the alarm. We drove it off.”

“It must be the same one which came around last winter. We lost a calf and two dogs in our village.”

“Wasn’t that the one the shikaris wounded? I hope it hasn’t become a cattle-lifter.”

“It could be the same. It has a bullet in its leg. These hunters are the people who cause all the trouble. They think it’s easy to shoot a panther. It would be better if they missed altogether but they usually wound it.”

“And then the panthers too slow to catch the barking-deer and starts on our own animals.”

“We’re lucky it didn’t become a man-eater. Do you remember the man-eater six years ago? I was very small then. My father told me all about it. Ten people were killed in our valley alone.”

“What happened to it?”

“I don’t know. Some say it poisoned itself when it ate the headman of the village.”

Bisnu laughed.

“Everyone hated that old villain.”
